

Net neutrality is critical to keeping information in the hands of the people. It has the strong potential to limit freedom of speech and creativity on the internet and the potential to affect the productivity of people who work from home. Most importantly however it puts too much power in the hands of Internet service providers. In my area, Comcast has a monopoly on Internet access—I am not able to use any other provider because they do not provide service to my residence. Comcast has unethical business practices (ref 1, 2) and because of this is consumers' most hated companies (ref 3). Giving a company like this any more power over their customers' Internet access by repealing Net Neutrality is an unethical decision.

ref 1:

https://www.reddit.com/r/technology/comments/2qtmj3/comcast\_to\_customer\_yes\_we\_promised\_you\_a\_price/ ref 2: <https://arstechnica.com/tech-policy/2016/10/comcast-accused-of-falsely-promising-low-prices-hiding-bogus-fees/> ref 3: <https://www.pcmag.com/news/350979/comcast-is-americas-most-hated-company>